George Orwell was a literary genius and from what I can tell a future predictor as well. It is a depressing story but a terrible look into the future from the perspective from the mid twentieth century. It should be read by every child so they can see what a life under authoritarianism, tyranny and leftist politics would be like. This is what will happen if JC and his cronies get voted in, God ...

— George Orwell, 1984. These slogans were created by an entity known only as "The Party," and consist of those in charge of the country. The words are written in enormous letters on the pyramid of the Ministry of Truth, which considering that they are obvious contradictions, seem to be an odd place to put them. The fact that this motto is written on a government building ...

George Orwell was recommended to me by his two most famous books: "ANIMAL FARM" and "1984", and I had started reading "ANIMAL FARM" first by chance. Then I thought that Orwell, almost, hadn't have something to talk about in his other book; because he "has summarized what is happening in the occupied revolutions". Later, I knew that "1984" was about Dystopian world that occurs after ANIMAL ...

George Orwell had many bad experiences with totalitarianism, and recounts these events in 1984. He experienced firsthand the effects of a fascist government in World War II. "In 1948, when Orwell's 1984 was first published, World War II had just ended." During World War II, mass murders were ordered by totalitarian leaders like Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin. "Adolf Hitler, in Germany ...
